INVESCO AIM LAUNCHES AIM BALANCED-RISK ALLOCATION FUND

INVESCO GLOBAL ASSET ALLOCATION GROUP'S PROPRIETARY RISK MANAGEMENT STRATEGY OFFERS NEXT-GENERATION ASSET ALLOCATION SOLUTION FOR RETAIL INVESTORS

HOUSTON, June 2, 2009 - Invesco Aim today announced the launch of AIM Balanced-Risk Allocation Fund (ABRZX) for investors seeking a next-generation approach to asset allocation through a proprietary risk management process with the potential to generate consistent returns in any economic environment. The fund's strategy seeks to accomplish this goal by actively investing in equities, government bonds and commodities. The weights of the asset classes are set such that each contributes a similar amount of risk to the overall portfolio.

"We're pleased to provide retail investors with a total-return, next-generation asset allocation strategy that can serve as a very flexible portfolio construction tool," said Phil Taylor, Senior Managing Director of Invesco and Head of Invesco's North American Retail business, including Invesco Aim.

Relative to traditional balanced portfolios, AIM Balanced-Risk Allocation Fund will seek to provide greater capital loss protection during down markets through its proprietary long-only, investment process. The fund will invest in derivatives and other financially linked instruments to provide leveraged exposure to certain U.S. and international equity, fixed income and commodity markets.

AIM Balanced-Risk Allocation Fund will be managed by investment professionals from Invesco's Global Asset Allocation Group, a team with specialized experience in tactical asset allocation, alternative beta, and multi-asset class investment solutions. Invesco has employed a version of this tactical allocation process across its mandates for institutional clients since 2001.

The fund's management team will be led by Scott Wolle, Chief Investment Officer of Invesco's Global Asset Allocation Group. Mr. Wolle has been with Invesco since 1999 and has 18 years of investment experience. He will be assisted on the fund by portfolio managers Mark Ahnrud, Chris Devine, Scott Hixon, and Christian Ulrich, each of whom has more than 13 years of investment experience.

“Balancing risk, along with a disciplined rebalancing process, are our guiding principles behind the asset mix in an effective portfolio,” Mr. Wolle said. “We believe investors would be well-served owning assets that cover all three major types of economic environments - recessionary, non-inflationary growth, and inflationary growth. The ultimate goal of this approach is to grow portfolio values consistently over time while at the same time minimizing periods of capital loss.”

The fund’s management team will actively adjust portfolio positions to reflect the near-term environment while remaining consistent with the optimized portfolio structure. The management team balances these two competing ideas - opportunity for excess return from active positioning and the need to maintain asset class exposure - by setting controlled tactical ranges around the optimal long-term allocation. The tactical ranges differ for each asset based on the management team’s estimates of volatility.

AIM Balanced-Risk Allocation Fund will be available in multiple share classes from Invesco Aim through financial intermediaries at broker-dealers, insurance companies, independent advisory firms and registered investment advisors for retail, fee-based wrap, retirement, and institutional clients.

Risks of Investing in AIM Balanced-Risk Allocation Fund

Derivatives - The fund may use derivatives as a substitute for purchasing the underlying asset or as a hedge in an effort to reduce exposure to risks. Use of derivatives involves risks similar to, as well as risks different from, and possibly greater than, the risks associated with investing directly in securities or more traditional instruments. Derivatives may also be more difficult to purchase or sell or value than other investments and is subject to counterparty risk - the risk that the other party will not complete the transaction with the fund. A fund investing in a derivative could lose more than the cash amount invested.

Leverage - The fund may use enhanced investment techniques such as leverage. Leveraging entail risks such as magnifying changes in the value (both positive and negative) of the portfolio’s securities.

Interest Rate Risk - Interest rate risk refers to the risk that bond prices generally fall as interest rate rise and vice versa.

Credit Risk - Credit risk is the risk of loss on an investment due to the deterioration of an issuer’s financial health. Such deterioration may lead to the issuer’s inability to honor its contractual obligation, include timely payments of interest and principal.

Foreign & Developing Markets Securities Risk - Foreign and Developing Markets securities have additional risks, including exchange rate changes, political and economic upheaval, relative lack of information, relatively low market liquidity, and the potential lack of strict financial and accounting controls and standards.

Commodity Risk - The fund or the Subsidiary may invest in commodity-linked derivative instruments that may be subject to greater volatility than investments in traditional securities.

Subsidiary Risk - The fund is indirectly exposed to the risks associated with the Subsidiary's investments. The Subsidiary is not registered under the 1940 Act is may not be subject to all the investor protections under the Act. Accordingly, the fund will not have all the protections offered to investors in registered investment companies.

Currency/Exchange Rate Risk - The fund is subject to currency/exchange rate risk because it may buy or sell currencies other than the U.S. dollar.

Limited Number of Holdings/Non-Diversification Risk -The value of the fund's shares may be subject to greater volatility, market, and credit risk. Because a large percentage of the fund's assets may be invested in a limited number of holdings, a change in value of these holdings could significantly affect the value of your investments in the fund.
